Dear Mrs. Newman,

May 4/1

I think violence on T.V. is very bad for the young children! On T.V. (home box office) has too many bad movies. I think on every channel ought to have a all morning kids time! If there is than there won't be anymore violent children.

Ms. Kreisman,
Dear Senator Specter.

There are too many violence on movies and video games! It encourages kids to use dangerous things, and do horrible things ^{whether} whether its in school or outside, or in the house. Everybodys life is ⁱⁿ danger unless violence is stopped. Ps. Thank you.

Sincerely Respectfully
Stephen Dalore

Dear Ms. [unclear],

Hi, My name is Erin Ficoville. I go to Park School in Munnhall. I am writing to show my concern about the increasing rate of violence on t.v. And the movies influence kids to do bad things. They think they'll be cool if they rob stores and do illegal things because that's what t.v. is telling them. An 8 year old hung herself after watching Night Of The Living Dead because she thought she would rise. Violence should be stopped.

Sincerely,

Erin Ficoville Grade 4

Dear Mr. [unclear]

I am writing you this about a very important topic, VIOLENCE. I don't think it is right that kids are allowed to watch very bad movies. I think they should take more responsibility. Some movies are rated PG-13 and some PG. I don't know they should be rated. When children watch movies they see things like people getting hurt by the gun and they don't understand it. I know that, so they go do it and an hour later they are dead. Please write back to me and tell me what YOU think. Also tell me how you can help.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Weissman,

Hi. I'm Tracey Cornble and I attend Park School. I'm concerned about violence. I just heard that a little girl about 6 or 7 years old saw a movie called Pet Cemetery and she hung herself with a dogleash thinking that she would be alright. She died. I'm concerned about violence and I would like to help to stop it. One thing that is bad is tv. Because little children watch it and they think it's O.k. to do it.
I would like to help stop it. How can I help?

Sincerely,
Tracey S. Cornble

Dear Ms. Kreisman,

In school, we've established a group called S.A.V.E. (Students Against Violence through Education). I personally think that what people see in magazines and on television affects how they see real life. If they see violence on television for a long period of time, kids think it is fun and cool to fight and kill as they grow older. Those kids try to start fights with kids that don't like fighting. If a kid doesn't want to fight, no one likes them. I even know a few children in this school who like to fight. So, I just want to say, kids who watch violence turn into mean kids.

Sincerely,
Billy Egan

Dear Ms. Kreusman,

Kids might quit doing stupid things if they were not being seen on T.V. and at the movies so often. If there was a laws about how much and what kind of violence being put on the screens, I really think this might help the problem. Please put my thoughts in consideration.

Sincerely

Donald Teglin

Dear Mr. Kreisman,

The violence are enlarging, because of this. The movies and videogames are the number one suspect. The way to stop this is that President Clinton should make a law on violence if just want to have peace so all of us can get along, please compromise with me be open to all the people, dont let this slip away to easily please do this for everyone in the world.

Your friend,
Stephen Dalore

Dear Mrs. Kreisman,

I think there is ~~too~~ much violence in T.V. and in movies. The movies encourage people to do stupid things and kill or hurt people. A couple of weeks ago I heard on the news that a girl hung herself because she watched a movie and the person got hung and died but came back to life so she tried it and died.

Sincerely,
Jessie Strom

Dear Ms. Kreisman,

I am very concerned about all of the violence on television. Some kids and grownups are going out and repeating that violence. Walt Disney movies are better than violent ones. Clint Eastwood should direct and be in a movie without killing, rape, stabbing or any other violence. I know you probably won't use these two suggestions, but they are, to tell the movie makers not to make any violent movies & to take all of the violent movies off of the screen. Please write back to us and tell us what we as children and adults can do to help stop violence on the streets and everywhere.

Your fellow neighbor,
Sarah Bowen.

Dear Mrs. Krizman

My brother is always picking one movie when we get into a fight but does anything more one movie. Cause he watches anything. One time we got into a fight he hurt me, he was almost me in the hospital. He always me down on the floor. Oh brother that he watches scary movies with murders and violence on it. It has a body hanging the self and come to life. One this movie is not scary but watched the same movie. One did the same thing, hurry has self and to see the would come back to life but she killed her self.
There is also suspense on this movie.
How come you did it some how.

P.S. Please
write back soon as possible
if you can.

Sincerely,

James Pender
